News briefs

Town hall meeting set

There's a town hall meeting Wednesday, 7-9 p.m., in the Top of the Rock Club. Topics of discussion will include security and safety issues and upcoming school projects. Military members, civilian employees and their families are invited to attend.

Enlisted heritage ball planned

Lajes' 5th Annual Enlisted Heritage Ball is set for May 18, 6 p.m., in the Top of the Rock Club. Tickets for E-1-E-4 are $8; $10 for E-5-E-6; and $12 for E-8-E-9. First sergeants will sell tickets until 5 p.m. Monday. Command Chief Master Sgt. Dan Keane, Air Combat Command, will be the guest speaker. For more information call Master Sgt. William Crow at 2-3921.

Lajes plans whopper weekend

Team Lajes members can get a taste of home, May 26-27, 11 a.m.-7 p.m., and May 28, 11 a.m.-6 p.m. A temporary Burger King will serve customers from the elementary school cafeteria.

Make sure parcels get there

There has been an increase in exterior damage to parcels wrapped with brown paper. Addresses are sometimes torn off or become unreadable. To ensure package delivery, postal officials recommend people put the address inside the package and write it on the box under the wrapping paper. For more information call 2-4251.

Unexpected stop

Staff Sgt. Andrew Espalza, 65th Security Forces Squadron, issues a traffic citation. Traffic violations on Lajes can rack up points against the driver's record. People who get too many points will lose driving privileges for specified periods of time, depending on the number of points. For a list of traffic violations and points incurred for each, see Page 4.

July 1 pay increase targets midlevel NCOs

WASHINGTON (AFPN) — Some midlevel noncommissioned officers will see an increase in their pay July 1 thanks to the fiscal 2001 National Defense Authorization Act.

Unlike last year's July 1 pay table reform where 75 percent of military members saw a raise, this year's reform targets E-5s to E-7s with six to 26 years of service.

The raise rewards promotion over longevity and addresses some of the concerns expressed by Department of Defense and congressional leaders about retention trends, said Maj. Shannon Averill, Air Force pay and allowances chief.

"This is the initial step to fixing the problem," she said. "It's also a step toward closing the gap between private-sector civilian wages and military wages."

The Jan. 1 pay raise for 2002, in keeping with the economic consumer index, will be a minimum of 4.6 percent.

For more information on pay increases or to see the new pay chart, go to <http://pay2000.dtic.mil/>.

Spouses -- key components in Air Force family

Col. Bill Percival
Commander

Every year since 1984, the military services have set aside a special day to honor military spouses. This year the day selected is today, May 11.

Today may be the official date for us to honor our military spouses, but I challenge everyone with a spouse to routinely thank them for all their contributions to your family and the Air Force or military family. Think for a minute about all your spouse does for you, the family and the community.

Spouses are often the glue that holds families together. Military spouses face multiple challenges as they manage the unique demands military life places on them. Dealing with deployments, family separations and frequent moves requires special skills and commitment.

Throughout military history, spouses have proven they are up to these challenges.

Remember your spouse's reaction when you said the family was moving to Lajes? Or, "Honey, I have to go to Saudi." Or, "Honey, I'm flying 12 hours tomorrow. Sorry. I know it's your birthday."

I remember Pam and my 25th anniversary dinner. It was an intimate candlelight dinner, just the two of us -- and 200 of our friends at a base function at the club. At least I wasn't TDY.

Spouses are so integral to our military lives that recently they were asked to appear before the House Appropriations Committee Military Construction Subcommittee to speak about challenges facing service members and families. The Air Force was represented by a spouse from Pope Air Force Base, N.C., but I'm confident it could have been any of our Lajes spouses.

Congress wants to hear from spouses, because they know there's no Pentagon spin at the dinner table.

We all know that important issues -- retention, re-enlistment and retirement decisions, as well as quality of life and schools -- are all discussed and decided at home.

In reality, and especially for those of us who have our spouses here with us, we're lucky to be at Lajes. For one thing, our deployment tempo is negligible when compared to the rest of the military.

Regardless, there are still challenges for all of our spouses as they adjust to living in a remote location and being separated from extended family members back home.

Not to be forgotten are those spouses that are sacrificing by living elsewhere. They have to adjust to their loved ones 5,000 miles and seven time zones away and having to shoulder more responsibility as a result of the separation.

Some people have suggested to me that Lajes become an unaccompanied assignment, but I strongly disagree. If spouses weren't allowed to accompany us here it would mean no dependents -- so no children or schools, a smaller commissary, dorm living for almost everyone and huge phone bills.

In short, a stint at Lajes without spouses would be just like another Prince Sultan Air Base -- one more addition to an already high deployment operations tempo.

It would also mean a big reduction in services and mission capability. We're lucky to have spouses at Lajes because of the critical role they play in jobs -- paid and volunteer, many in uniform, around the base.

From the schools to the Red Cross, from the post office to the clinic, the base wouldn't be the Lajes we know without our spouses.

I think we can all agree that spouses play a key role in the success of our Air Force, this base and particularly in our personal success.

Spouses' day gives us a good opportunity to pause and reflect on the joy our spouses bring to our lives, so please join me in taking the time to say a special thanks to your spouse.

Volunteers help SFS reduce, counter crime

Tech. Sgt. Jose Ruiz
Public affairs

It has been more than a month since volunteers first took to the streets in the Beira Mar and Lower-T housing areas as part of the Neighborhood Watch Program and it's paying off.

Armed only with two-way radios, flashlights and a desire to keep their neighborhoods safe and crime free, volunteers have patrolled these communities every Friday and Saturday evening, looking for and reporting suspicious activities to security forces.

The presence of neighborhood watch volunteers in the housing areas allows security forces to respond more quickly to potential trouble and counter a potential threat or problem before it escalates into something worse, explained Staff Sgt. Apryl Thompson, 65th Security Forces Squadron NCO in charge of crime prevention.

Thompson credited the volunteers with helping to bring down crime statistics in the housing areas in April.

According to Security Forces' crime statistics, during the program's first month, reported incidents base wide went down 50 percent and a the crime-rate percentage per population went down one half-point.

Thompson attributed the program's early success to its initial volunteer turnout. "In the beginning, it went really well," she said. "We had a lot of people who wanted to help, and our slots filled up fast. Unfortunately, it's now starting to taper off a little."

Thompson pointed out that initially there were more volunteers for the program than available slots in April, adding that this may have discouraged some people from volunteering for later dates.

Fewer volunteers has resulted in fewer watch teams patrolling the housing areas during recent weeks.

She added that the summer months have historically shown a slight increase in security-related incidents in the housing areas and said watch program volunteers would be a valuable resource for combating this trend.

Master Sgt. Keith Jimmo, a regular program volunteer, said the program offers residents a chance to directly impact their community's safety.

"If you want a safe neighborhood, you've got to give some of yourself to it," Jimmo said. "Our security forces are out there on the streets all the time, doing their best to keep us safe, but they can't be everywhere at once."

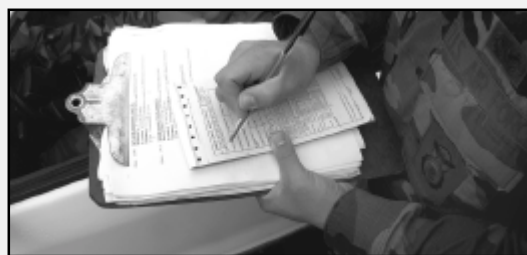

He added that volunteering for the program has allowed him to establish a rapport with security forces as well as his neighbors.

"It's really a worthwhile thing," Jimmo said. "I encourage everyone to come on out and give it a try for a couple of hours. I think they'll find it to be rewarding."

"We all share in the responsibility of keeping our neighborhoods secure," said Col. Bill Percival, 65th Air Base Wing commander. "And this program affords us the opportunity to carry out that responsibility in a safe, effective manner."

But to succeed, the program needs active participation, according to the colonel. "An investment of just a few hours a month pays dividends for all in the form of a safer living environment," the colonel said.

Anyone interested in volunteering can call Thompson at 2-3645 and leave a message or email her at apryl.thompson@lajes.af.mil.

President nominated Roche as secretary

WASHINGTON (AFP) — President George W. Bush has announced his intention to nominate James G. Roche to serve as the next secretary of the Air Force.

Roche is the corporate vice president and president of the Electric Sensors and Systems Sector of the Northrop Grumman Corporation. He has served with Northrop Grumman Corporation since 1984 in a variety of posts.

Before joining the private sector, he served as democratic staff director for the U.S. Senate Committee on Armed Services from 1983 to 1984, and served at the State Department as policy and planning staff principal deputy director.

James G. Roche

Roche was a senior professional staff member of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence from 1979 to 1981, and served as assistant director of the office of net assessment in the office of the secretary of defense from 1975 to 1979.

The 23-year Navy veteran received an undergraduate degree from the Illinois Institute of Technology, a master's degree from the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School and a doctorate from Harvard Graduate School of Business.

Lajes antiterrorism, best in DOD

Staff Sgt. Beverly Isik
Public affairs

The 65th Security Forces Squadron received the Department of Defense's Best Antiterrorism Operational Unit Award May 3.

The award is presented annually by the assistant secretary of defense for special operations and low intensity conflict.

It recognizes people and units who work behind the scenes with antiterrorism, force protection programs to protect military members, DOD employees, family members and facilities by heightening awareness of the nature and dangers of terrorism and helping to deter and prevent terrorism through aggressive defensive measures.

Through hard work and innovation from the security force team, Col. Bill Percival, 65th Air Base Wing and U.S. Forces Azores commander, said force protection is now at the forefront of everyone's mind.

"The results are astonishing," the colonel said. "Antiterrorism awareness has soared to an all time high because of our reinvigorated ATPF program with many creative Lajes first initiatives."

SFS has about 55 military members and Portuguese employees, with three in ATPF.

Troops, units earn excellence awards

LANGLEY AIR FORCE BASE, Va. (ACCNS) — Two enlisted members and three units from Lajes have been recognized for their excellence by the Air Combat Command Commander-in-Chief's Annual Award For Installation Excellence in the special-recognition category.

The award was established by the president in 1984 to recognize outstanding efforts by people who operate and maintain Department of Defense installations. The award encourages commanders to create an environment that promotes innovative and creative ways of enhancing base-level services, facilities and quality of life.

Individual winners are Senior Master Sgt. John Henry, 65th Civil Engineer Squadron, and Senior Airman Stuart Wilson, 65th Communications Squadron.

Unit awards went to the 65th Supply Squadron, 65th Security Forces Squadron and the 65th Communications Squadron.

Air Force award winner

Senior Master Sgt. Keith Williams, U.S. Forces Azores joint forces staff, was named the Air Force's logistician of the year.

Airman promotion

Shanelle Stephens, 65th Supply Squadron, was promoted to airman in May.

(V, violence; S, sex or sensuality; D, drug use; L, language; G, gore)

SaturdayRecess: School's Out

Animated. There's one thing better than recess, and that's summer vacation. But, T.J.'s pals are going to summer camp without him. G.

SundayThe Wedding Planner

Jennifer Lopez, Matthew McConaughey; she is one of the most prestigious wedding planners in San Francisco. She's in love with one of her most important clients -- Internet tycoon Fran Donolly, who she soon marries. PG-13 (S, L).

MondaySweet November

Keanu Reeves, Charlize Theron; she's a charming spirit. He's a workaholic executive -- until he meets her. Intrigued, they settle on a one-month trial with no strings attached. PG-13 (S, L).

TuesdayGet Over It

Kirsten Dunst, Ben Foster; he thought his senior year was going to be perfect. He was wrong. PG-13 (S, D, L).

WednesdayFinding Forrester

Sean Connery; a gifted basketball player stumbles into a friendship with a novelist and college professor, who soon discovers the boy's writing skills. The boy is soon confronted with the decision of playing ball and writing. PG-13 (S, L).

Thursday15 Minutes

Robert De Niro is a police detective investigating a brutal murder committed by a psychopath who was seeking his 15 minutes of fame. As media sources are pulled into the case, a sensational atmosphere develops. Reporters and journalists exploit each new detail, obscuring the truth. R (V, L, S).

FridayDown To Earth

Chris Rock, Regina King; when he finds himself at Heaven's door, he is convinced there has been a mistake. He's right, so a heavenly agent places him into the corpse of a rich Manhattan mogul who has been bumped off by his wife. PG-13 (L, S, D).
